Staff

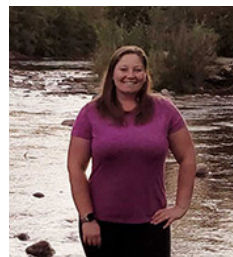

Rose Jergens
Director

"I always wanted to be part of the solution to help abused and hurting kids. The only way that I can do this work is with an empathic staff who are motivated and living this work with passion, as well."

Rachel Heberle
Therapist

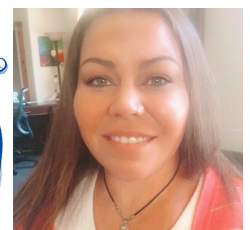

"What I love to see happen for our children is that by the end of counseling the trauma that they experienced will not be as important or cause them problems because they have new tools to use."

Trisha Halencak
Forensic Interviewer

"I get to help children find their voice by being a good listener and asking the right questions to help them share their story about the trauma they have experienced."

"I provide direct service, be a beacon of light, stay steady and consistent, empower others to empower themselves, be a cheerleader!"

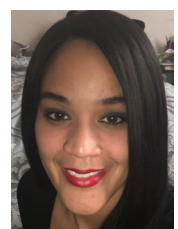

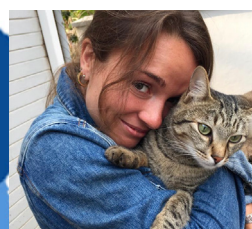

Lacey Osterloh
Advocate

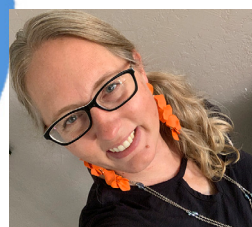

Miguel Reza
Therapist

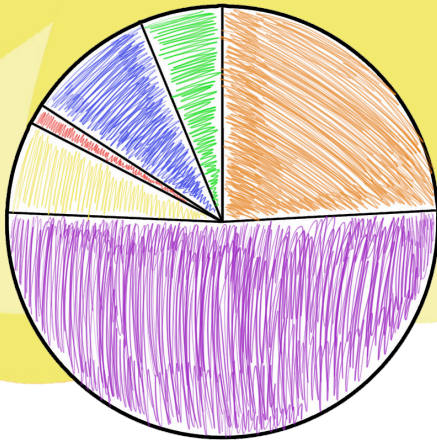

"I get to see children, adolescents, and their families and support the community in relation to Problematic Sexual Behaviors in children. I advocate, raise awareness, educate, and empower."

Prevention & Education

Currently, we are working on running a media campaign targeting changing norms around who is responsible for abuse prevention; providing Mandated Reporter Trainings, teaching babysitting classes, organizing family skill building events, and working on community outreach. In the past six months, we have trained youth in safety skills, life skills, and entrepreneurship; developed and held four "strengthening families" events with over 200 participants; started our positive norms change campaign; held a youth art competition; and have trained over 150 Mandated Reporters. This was all made possible by the collaboration between the Advocacy Center, Pinon Project, the School Community Youth Collaborative, the Montelores Early Childhood Council, Team Up, and Americorps. Together, these organizations have been able to make a difference in our community.

Continued Connection During COVID

"I'm so relieved that I still have a way to do counseling, I don't think I could get through this (crisis) without your support."

Message from the Board...

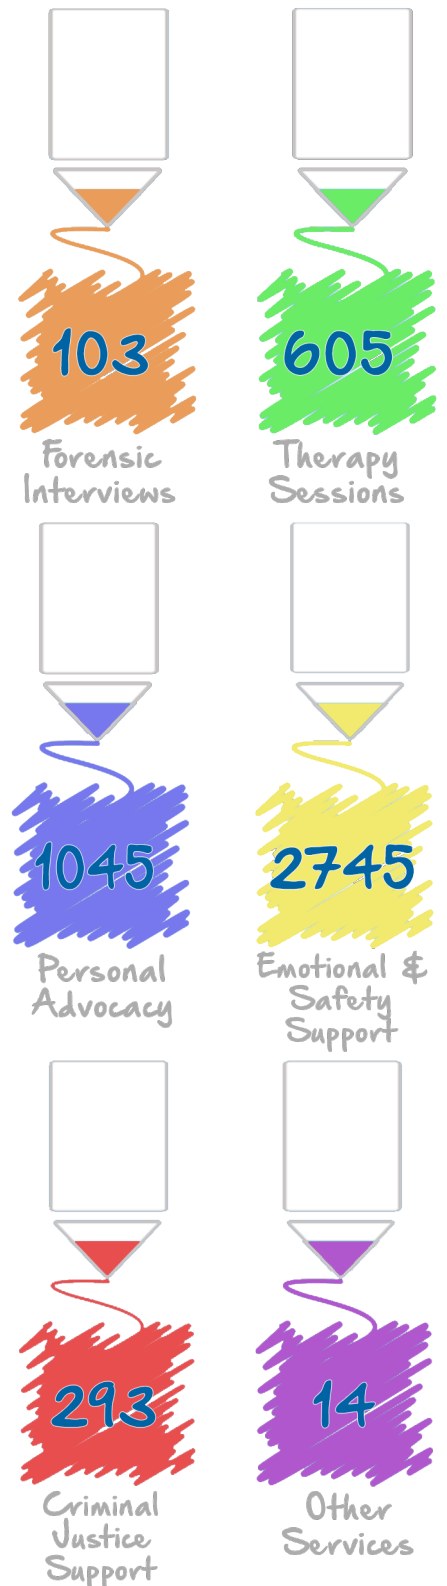

Greetings - 2020 has been a different and challenging year for everyone. The demand for our services has risen due to the quarantines removing many safe havens for abused children. We have been fortunate to have the staff we have and the support of many donors and grantors, even when times have been tough. We are extremely thankful. Our team has found ways to get things done, stay safe, and be frugal with expenses. We look forward to 2021 and being able to make more personal connections with our clients as things go back to normalcy.

-Greg Bryan, board president
